OyMG By Amy Fellner Dominy

Ellie Taylor loves nothing better than a good argument. So when she gets accepted to the Christian Society Speech and Performing Arts summer camp, she's sure that if she wins the final tournament, it'll be her ticket to a scholarship to the best speech school in the country. Unfortunately, the competition at CSSPA is hot-literally. His name is Devon and, whether she likes it or not, being near him makes her sizzle. Luckily she's confident enough to take on the challenge-until she begins to suspect that the private scholarship's benefactor has negative feelings toward Jews. Will hiding her true identity and heritage be worth a shot at her dream?

Debut author Amy Fellner Dominy mixes sweet romance, surprising secrets, and even some matzo ball soup to cook up a funny yet heartfelt story about an outspoken girl who must learn to speak out for herself.

Editorial Review

Review

"Dominy's debut balances light and heavy subject matter with ease. . . . Readers who like their frothy romance with a bracing dash of serious social issues will be clamoring for seconds." --Kirkus

Ellie's roller-coaster of a summer is an appealing balance of big questions and universal teen concerns and triumphs. --The Bulletin of the Center for Children's Books

"...kids will enjoy reading about likable Ellie's struggles and will get a real kick out of her grandfather." --School Library Journal

"Dominy does a good job discussing beliefs, personal responsibility, and how to do the "right" thing. ...there are honest discussions here that will make readers think about what makes them who they are--and who they want to be." --Booklist

"Teens who are interested in the world of high school oratory will relish the descriptions of exercises and competitions, as well as the excerpts of the speeches." --Association of Jewish Libraries

From the Inside Flap

Ellie Taylor loves nothing better than a good argument. After all, she's been arguing with Zeydeh, her grandfather, since she could talk. So when she gets accepted to the Christian society Speech and Performing Arts summer camp, she's sure that if she wins the final tournament it'll be her ticket to a scholarship to the best speech high school in the country.

Unfortunately, the competition at CSSPA is hot -- literally. His name is Devon and whether Ellie likes it or not, being near him makes her sizzle. But Ellie's ready to take on the challenge -- until she begins to suspect that the private scholarship's benefactor has negative feelings toward Jews. Will hiding her true identity and heritage be worth a shot at her dream? Or will her outspoken nature force her to speak out for herself?

From the Back Cover

I shot Devon a glare, and he surprised me by grinning. There was a challenge in his eyes, but also laughter. He was enjoying this.

"I'm soooo glad you find this funny."

"If you're afraid to go head-to-head--"

"Who said I was afraid?" I interrupted. I lifted my chin again, wishing I were taller so I didn't have to look up. "I can beat you either way."

Devon's eyes glinted at me, dark and light--hot and cold--all at the same time. "We'll find out on Friday," he said. He held out his hand. "May the best speech win."

It was a dare--a bet--and I took his hand to seal the deal. A quick, firm handshake to show him I meant business.

And then it happened.

An electric shiver. From his hand to mine.

It was like seventh-grade science class. The day we mixed baking soda and vinegar. And two things that were calm suddenly sizzled.

I sizzled.
